Barrier-free Museum

02/05/2024 A journey back in time through the history of Porsche

The co-existence of people with and without disabilities is supported by a mutual understanding for each other. Since 2014, the Porsche Museum has devoted a separate theme week to all visitors with disabilities. The origin of this project is rooted in the International Day of Persons with Disabilities, which has been launched by the United Nations in 1992 and is observed worldwide on 3 December. “We would like to not only make it possible for people with disabilities to experience Porsche, but also to provide non-disabled persons with an impression of what life is like with a physical or psychological disability,” explains Achim Stejskal, Director of the Porsche Museum.

The Porsche Museum is barrier-free. You can find more information here.
